MISSOURI PACIFIC TRAIN ROBBED

LONE BANDIT GOES THROUGH TRAIN AND CLEANS OUT PASSENGERS

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 25.—A bandit celebrated Christmas night by going through Missouri Pacific train No. 112, due here at 10:35, and holding up more than one hundred passengers, from whom he took only money and watches.

The man boarded the train, which was from St. Joseph bound for St. Louis, at Leavenworth Junction, in the outskirts of Leavenworth, and left it at Northwestern Junction in Kansas City, Kan., after securing a large amount of money and valuable and shooting one man who resisted him.

Starts Work in Pullman.

As the train pulled out of the Leavenworth Junction, the robber opened the rear door of the Pullman car and confronted the astonished crew with a revolver, after which he robbed them.

Cautioning the conductor and porter to keep still, he went through the car, taking up a collection of watches and wallets. Finishing with the Pullman, he continued through the chair cars and the smoker until he had held up every passenger.

Escapes at Kansas City.

The train left Leavenworth Junction shortly before 10 o'clock, and by the time the man had finished his work it had reached Kansas City Junction. Here he dropped from the steps of the smoker and disappeared. The railroad officials say the man who was shot was not seriously injured.

It is not known how much money the bandit secured.

Driest Since Oklahoma Opened.

Guthrie, Okla., Dec. 24.—Fred L. Wenner, assistant secretary of the Republican State committee and for twelve years private secretary to Territorial Governors, declares the present drought spell is the longest and driest since Oklahoma was first opened in 1889. Not only are present conditions serious, but he says next year's crops are now being endangered, as it will be practically impossible to plow the ground unless there is an exceedingly heavy rainfall. Wenner now lives on a farm east of Guthrie.

Over 3,300 Bales Ginned at Allen

The two gins of Allen up to Saturday, December 17, 1910, had ginned 3,311 bales of cotton this season.—Allen Hustler.

WRECK ON KATY AT GREENVILLE, TEXAS

Greenville, Texas, Dec. 25.—Engineer Tom A. Cox, fireman R. E. Henderson and brakeman B. P. Smith met instant death at 5 o'clock this morning when a southbound Katy freight train ran into an open switch in the yards. The train ran into the switch at a fast rate of speed and the engine was overturned, the three victims being thrown beneath the wreckage and scalded to death by the escaping steam and water.

All of the men were dead before they could be extricated from the wreckage, and so badly were they burned and scalded that the bodies were hardly recognizable.

Besides the engine, three cars loaded with cotton were destroyed, but as the wreck occurred on a switching line, main line traffic was not delayed by the accident.

Cox and Henderson lived in Denison and Fireman Smith lived in Sherman. The bodies of the dead men were prepared for burial by Greenville undertakers and sent to their respective homes tonight for interment.

BURGLAR SHOT AT HOLDENVILLE

About three o'clock yesterday morning two burglars were captured at Holdenville while in the act of robbing Geo. P. Ewing & Co's. store, and one of them was shot by the night watchman.

For some time past burglaries have been frequent at that place, evidently the work of an organized gang. Two of them tried it just one too often, for the night watchman happened along in time to nab them before they could make their getaway. When caught they had something over $300 worth of goods and about $18 that they had gathered in the Ewing store and also a small amount they had already picked up at the Adams store.

The News thinks a great deal of its little friends and regrets that it received too late for publication Saturday two Santa Claus letters from Misses Viola and Mary Franklin. The letters reached the editor after the paper had gone to press, and we regret that the little folks did not get their letters in a little sooner.

BRUTAL MURDER AT HENNEPIN

GARVIN COUNTY MUCH STIRRED
BY ASSASSINATION OF DR.
D. L. BURNS

Hennepin, Okla., Dec. 24.—The most brutal murder that Garvin county has known occurred here Thursday night, when Dr. R. L. Burns, aged 33 years, was killed in his own bed with his own ax, shortly after midnight, according to the general belief. His body then was dragged out of the house, thrown into a wagon and hauled away. So far all search for the wagon and the murderers has been without result.

The murder was discovered at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, when Dr. B. F. Barnes, J. C. Potts and Victor Williams, neighbors of Dr. Burns believing he was ill. The discovered the bed covered with blood, one of the pillows soaked with it, and covered with pieces of bone and parts of a human brain.

Others were summoned to the scene at once and a thorough investigation was made. It was discovered that the body had been taken through another room, drops of blood showing the trail, pushed through a screen window, and carried 150 yards behind the barn. There a wagon trail started, and the blood stream followed the wagon trail for something like a quarter of a mile, gradually becoming fainter. Less than a half mile from the house the entire trail was lost.

Bloodhounds to Trail.

The wagon started north from the house, and a posse was organized immediately, but their pursuit was given up soon in order to wait for the arrival of bloodhounds.

The belief that Dr. Burns was murdered Thursday night is strengthened by knowledge of the fact that on that night he was last seen alive, so far as is known. He answered a call shortly 10 o'clock and returned just before midnight.

The general belief is that the men who killed him entered the house while the doctor was absent on this call, and waited in a back room until Burns was asleep, coming out then and committing the murder.

That there were at least five or six of the men is unquestioned by those who made an examination of the tracks near the house. Also it is considered unlikely that fewer men than that could have committed the crime as it evidently was done.

Burns Had Enemy.

Dr. Burns was under indictment by the grand jury on a charge of having assaulted Robert Mayes, a blacksmith, with intent to kill. The trouble occurred last spring, when Mayes claimed he caught Burns and his wife together in the woods.

Mayes had been living in Burns' house since shortly after Burns was divorced, two years ago.

Burns came to Garvin county from Harrison, Ark., about five years ago, and brought with him his wife and a son, aged 8 years. The child now is at the home of his grandfather in Harrison. His wife went to Canada directly after the divorce.

Burns was well liked in this county, except among the friends of Mayes. It is claimed that Mayes left Hennepin several days ago to visit relatives in Noble, Okla.

Forty men will leave Hennepin Sunday morning with bloodhounds, if they are obtainable, and search for the men who killed Burns.

LATER—Today's dispatches indicate that the above murder is likely to prove a hoax. It is now believed that the wily doctor, who was to have appeared in court to answer for an assault on a blacksmith, simply spattered blood over his room to make it appear that a murder had been committed, and then skipped the country.

SENATOR CLAPP COR- ROBORATES SEN. GORE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—One of the most interesting sessions of the committee investigating the McMurray contracts occurred this week. Senator Clapp appeared before the committee and corroborated Senator Gore's statement with respect to the Rowell allotment, showing that Gore had made an immediate protest against the Clapp amendment authorizing the allotment, and received positive assurance that the provision carrying this allotment, valued at $75,000, would be stricken out in conference.

Gore Calls for Stenographer's Notes.

Another vital witness was Mr. Murphy, the official reporter of the Senate who reported the proceedings when the Rowell amendment was adopted. The Congressional Record represented Senator Gore as offering a letter in support of the allotment. Senator Gore denied this in his testimony, but notwithstanding this fact, Bert Parmenter and others campaigned the state representing and misrepresenting the Senator in this connection. The notes of the stenographer are still in existence and were presented to the Committee. They verified the Senator's statement word for word and letter for letter.

Mrs. Gore Testifies.

Mrs. Gore, the Senator's wife, also testified, corroborating her husband in every detail and contradicting Jake Hamon's testimony of any request or improper suggestions during Hamon's uninvited and unwelcome visit to their home. It showed that the serpent would make its slimy trail across the very threshold and into their very home. Mrs. Gore made a fine witness and a most favorable impression.

Senator Gore Talks of Investigation

Regarding the investigation Senator Gore said, "It has been the common fate of every man who makes such a disclosure. Hamon has resorted to the common refuge of all persons against whom such disclosures are made. They plead that an attempt is being made to blackmail and hold them up—they defame those whom they fail to debauch. I knew that I was taking up a nest of serpents and could hardly expect to escape their sting. I did my duty as I saw it and all honest people and lovers of good government and enemies of graft have approved and applauded my course from first to last, irrespective of politics."

President Will Not Interfere.

Ed Brents is in receipt of news from headquarters that the liquor interests have been leading President Taft a merry chase lately trying to persuade him to put a stop to the saloon smashing that Pussyfoot Johnson and himself have been doing on some of the Indian reservations of Minnesota. The President has refused to interfere, however.

Coalgate as Cotton Market.

Coalgate, Okla., Dec. 24.—This place has become a cotton market for this section and there has been a record-breaking amount of cotton ginned here this fall. The Coalgate Gin Company has ginned 712 bales and the Electric gin about 1,662 bales.

LITTLE DORA THOMAS BURNED TO DEATH

Little Dora Thomas, the six-year-old daughter of J. A. Thomas, who lives on West Main street, died Saturday night as a result of burns received Friday evening. The clothes of the little one caught from a stove and she rushed into the street. Her mother hastened to her assistance and in tearing the burning clothes from the child received some bad burns herself. However, it was too late, and after lingering until the next night the little one passed away. The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon by Rev. Marshall Dapree.

It was certainly a sad Christmas for the parents, and they have our deepest sympathy in their great and irreparable loss.

Close Call from Cannon Cracker

Saturday night Walter Carter, of the News force had a close call from a big cannon cracker. Just as he started across the street at the intersection of Main and Broadway some fellow threw a big cracker into the street just at his feet, and before he could take a step out of the way it exploded. Pieces of it struck him in the eyes and across the nose, inflicting some painful wounds. It was a close call for his left eye.

Telephone Company Extensions.

The Francis Telephone Company has recently completed a line to the home of Mr. Chiles, northwest of town, via C. H. Butler's, D. L. Richardson's and Mr. Holloways. Also a line out on Round Prairie via of J. B. Milner's and others.—Allen Hustler.

OWEN AGAINST TOL VELLE BILL
Senator R. L. Owen has come out that footed against the Tol Velle bill designed to put the government out of the free envelope printing business. The senator seems to think that it is the proper thing for the government to thus compete with the country printers. However, he may have a rude awakening in the near future. Even Owen would not be immune from the combined attack of the newspapers of Oklahoma, and the indications are that is exactly what will occur at the primary two years hence. The News desires to be mentioned in on that fight no matter who may be Owen's opponent.

We were not certain Saturday when we went to press whether we would get out an issue today or not, but after due consideration, decided that it was due our readers to keep up the paper with unbroken regularity. We permitted most of the force to take holiday, however, and are running with just enough to handle the paper. Our next break in publication will be July 4, 1911.

Just why Gov. Haskell saw fit to commute the death sentence of Hopkins, the Comanche county murderer, we are unable to say, but on the surface it looks like the worst blot on his administration. Hopkins had been convicted of about the most diabolical murder ever committed anywhere or that the human mind can conceive of, and if ever a death sentence was merited it was in this case. Hopkins had forfeited all right to live and hanging is a punishment too mild for cases like his.

The News man will not print his New Year resolutions until he tries them out. If they work we may do some bragging a little later. If not, the less said the better.

CRUCE MAKES GOOD START

Gov. Cruce has announced two appointments that he will make when he assumes the duties of his office.
The first is that of F. S. E. Amos, editor of the Vinita Leader, as private secretary. The other is chief clerk of the executive department to which post he has appointed W. F.
Kerr of the Oklahoman. Both men are thoroughly capable, and the News rejoices to see the new governor begin his administration by thus recognizing the newspaper fraternity.

A ten line item in the papers tell the conclusion of a tragedy in real life. It was of the sudden death at Fort Worth of Jas. G. Lowden, formerly of Abilene, Texas. Twenty years ago when the writer lived near Abilene Lowden was president of the largest bank of that section, held the confidence of the business public, and was afterwards the Republican nominee for governor of the state.
Later in the mad rush for wealth he became involved in some cotton deals that bankrupted both him and his bank. He and his cashier were indicted and after fighting their case through the supreme court of the United States, were sentenced to the penitentiary for several years. The cashier died very suddenly after hearing that his sentence had been affirmed, probably by his own hand.
Lowden went to the penitentiary at Atlanta and a few days ago was paroled. He returned home and died six hours later from heart failure.
It looks like the irony of fate for the end thus to come to a man. With a few more years of life the man might have redeemed himself to some extent and have removed some of the stain that had attached itself to his name. His case is a very good illustration of how easy it is for a man to get himself into trouble. It is not probable that Lowden took a cent of the bank's funds for speculation with the intention of defrauding anyone. He thought he saw a chance to make a good sum, but mis-sessed his calculation and found himself in a felon's cell instead of the palatial home. His fate should be a warning to young men who are inclined to tamper with fate.

Presented with Watch.

Just before the distribution of the presents at the Christmas tree at the Christian church began Saturday evening, R. W. Allen on behalf of a number of members of the church presented the pastor, Rev. Leroy M.
Anderson, with a fine gold watch engraved with his initials and the date.
This was altogether a surprise to the pastor and he was so affected by this token of esteem from his members, that he could scarcely reply.
It was well merited and both he and his church are to be congratulated on the happy state of harmony that prevails in the congregation.

IN A TENEMENT

On this afternoon, when the girl was in the midst of her lecture, a woman crept into the room and fell in a chair, half fainting. The lesson continued, the woman now and again raising her pathetic face to the speaker, now burying it in her emaciated hands and giving way to long sighs of exhaustion.

The face was so white, so imploring, that when the girl stopped to weigh another baby, she left it a moment in the machine to go to her and ask her address. It was well she did so, for as she continued her lecture, the woman, grown too weak to listen further, arose, crept to the door, grasped the bottle of milk the attendant there gave her, and staggered out.

The girl weighed a few more babies, finished her lecture, dismissed the mothers, and turned large reflective eyes upon me. "That woman worries me," she said. "I must go to her.
She is so frail. Perhaps her baby is starving. Perhaps the whole family is starving. There is much suffering this summer among the poor. Will you go with me?"

I assented and we started out.
The sun blazed on the shriek of the street. The girl took the slip of paper from her pocket and read the address.

"It's near the river," she commented, "a long way," and she began to walk very straight ahead, looking neither to the right nor to the left of her.

"It is necessary down here," she explained.

"You must pretend not to notice
these people, for you will offend them.
They are not animals, they say, nor ants or moles that you must put your spyglasses on them, studying their lives. They have their pride. I have to be very careful of the mothers, too, not to make them feel that I know much more about bringing up babies than they do, or they will take offense."

We knocked. There was no answer.
The door was slightly ajar, and the girl, in her capacity of teacher and nurse, took the liberty of pushing it open, more and more, until at last it flared wide and we stood on the threshold, gazing in.

For some reason known only to themselves, the mothers of East side babies keep them generally in the middle of the center table in the center of the living room. They seem to take the place of ornaments, centerpieces, as it were, of bits of bric-a-brac, of vases, or of fancy pitchers full of paper flowers—the flower which is most popular on the East side. This baby was no exception to the rule in the matter of placing. Directly in the center of the table he sat, laughing, crowing, trying to ram both chubby fists into his mouth at once, glee in his eyes and a glow of radiant and beautiful healthfulness emanating from his small personality.

"What a beautiful baby!" cried the girl. "Beautiful! But the mother!
Where is she?"

We were not long in finding her.
The door was slightly ajar, and the girl, stretched in the dead faint of exhaustion and starvation on a couch in a corner of the room, as nearly lifeless as any woman can be and live.

The girl nurse knew what to do, with what restoratives to coax her back to earth again. She had, moreover, these restoratives in her retic-ule.

She brought all her trained skill to bear upon the case, and it was not long before the mother gasped, opened her eyes, looked about her at the two of us bending over her, at her beautiful crowing baby on the table, and burst into tears.

The girl in her masterful way went out and laid in a bountiful supply of eatables, brought them back, cooked a dainty meal for the mother and gave the baby a little more milk though he had already more than was necessary.

Then we made up a little purse between us, left it on the mantel for immediate needs, and came away.

We walked for a period silently through the yell of the vendors homeward, the bridge of sighs spanning the streets back of us, gray as the skeleton of a bridge against the sunlit blue of the sky.

"Starved herself," I commented then,
"that the baby might live. Wouldn't even drink a drop of milk she had brought for him for fear he might suffer. I saw the bottle on the mantel. It was half full."

The Modern Suburban Home.

The clocks were striking the hour of midnight, when the crack second story burglar left his pal on watch in the road while he crept off toward the marked suburban domicile.

"Well, Bill," inquired the marauder in the road as the more active burglar reappeared a few minutes later, "did ye use them upper porches to advantage in gittin' into that joint?"
"Upper porches nothin'!" growled the baffled burglar, in disgust; "every blessed one o' them spaces that ought ter be open porches is bein' used fer an outside bedroom!"—Norman E.
Mack's National Monthly.

A Zigzagger.

An old crow sat on a hickory limb watching the aviator preparing for flight.

"How far is it to Pilot Knob?" asked the aeroplane chauffeur.
"About ten miles as I fly," answered the crow, "but it's all of thirty as you fly."

Taking the Hopeful View.

The prisoner's lawyer was addressing the jury.

"Gentlemen," he said, "the attorney for the prosecution refers to my client as a 'double dyed villain.' That's what he is, gentlemen, and that's all he is! He is only a villain by reason of the dye—the double dye, if you please—with which the infamously false testimony in this case has colored him! And those dyes are not fast colors, they will come out in the wash. I confidently look to your verdict, gentlemen of the jury, to remove those spurious stains from the character of a cruelly and unjustly persecuted man and reveal him as he really is, an upright, honest citizen, white as the driven snow!"

Thereupon the twelve jurors, good men and true, without leaving their seats, unanimously found the defendant guilty of stealing the ham.

Historic Linlithgow.

It is proposed, as a memorial in Scotland to the late king, to restore Linlithgow palace. Holyrood is in a fair state of preservation, whereas Linlithgow palace, on the shore of the beautiful sheet of water of that name, is in ruins, and this being the case, perhaps the better plan would be the restoration of Linlithgow. The palace, which is somewhat square and heavy looking, was the birthplace of Mary Queen of Scots; in Linlithgow church James IV. of Scotland was forewarned by an apparition of the coming disaster at Flodden Field; in its streets the regent Murray was shot; close by the town Edward I. had two ribs broken by his horse the night before Falkirk, and on its loch a chancellor of the exchequer, bent on economy, issued instructions that the royal swans should be kept down to a dozen!

Plucking Asparagus.

They were very young and very happy and very foolish and very newly wed.

And they kept a kitchen garden.
"Angelina, darling," said the youthful husband, "as I was passing through the garden I saw some asparagus ready for cooking. Perhaps you'd like to go and gather the first fruit of the season yourself?"

She would love to, but she wasn't expert in horticulture and didn't want to "let on." If she went alone she might commit some egregious blunder.

"I tell you what, Edwin," exclaimed the girl wife enthusiastically, "we'll go out together. You shall pluck it and I will hold the ladder."

CHRISTMAS TREES AT THE CHURCHES

The Christmas trees at the various churches Saturday evening were about as usual. Short programs were rendered at each and the distribution of presents from the gaily decorated trees was made, much to the delight of the eager little folks who were there in expectancy of something nice from old Santa Claus. Some of the older ones, also, seemed a little anxious to see if they would be remembered, and in most cases they were not disappointed.

Sacred Concert at Methodist Church
The sacred concert at the Methodist church last evening participated in by the Otterbein Quartet, Miss Van Wormer and Mrs. Lee, attracted a large audience that filled the church almost to its full capacity. The selections were very fine and were well received by the audience that expected much and got all it expected. It is not often that the citizens of a town the size of ours have the opportunity of witnessing such talent.

Mr. M. O. Cook and Miss Addie Donaghey were married at the home of the bride's mother, at 6:30 o'clock Sunday night, December 18, 1910, Dr. W. B. Toney officiating. After the ceremony a bounteous supper was enjoyed by the many invited guests. The Greek orchestra was present and furnished some delightful music for the occasion. The young couple has a host of friends who join the Hustler in extending congratulations.—Allen Hustler.

An Appreciated Christmas Present
Perhaps no other man in Ada received a Christmas present that he prized more than D. R. Robb did a pair of Russian wolf hound pups. These were the gift of R. E. Kerwood of Randlett and are from the famous dogs used in Roosevelt's noted wolf chase a few years ago. Mr. Robb being one of the most ardent hunters in this section is counting on some great sport when the dogs reach their full size.

Cleaning Up.
W. R. Brandon stopped us this morning to pay a compliment to Mr. Pool for his industry in cleaning up the alley back of his home on 15th street. Mr. Brandon says that he got out early before breakfast and never stopped until he had made the alley as clean as a floor. Mr. Brandon says it is a fine example which he recommends to the citizens of Ada in general.

Dickinson May Go to U. S. Senate.
Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 22.—It is rumored at Democratic headquarters that Secretary of War Jacob M. Dickinson will be sprung as a dark horse for United States Senator to succeed Senator James B. Frazier when the legislature meets, Jan. 1. Secretary Dickinson recently refused to be considered as a candidate when approached by the democratic organization, but it is now stated that he would be willing to let his name go before the legislature if it became necessary to preclude the possibility of the election of a republican as senator.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

No Need to Take Any Further Risks. Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work. If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in. Can Ada residents demand more convincing proof than the following:

M. H. Brown, plumber, Main St., Sulphur, Okla., says: "I willingly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other persons in need of a kidney remedy. I was troubled for some time by too frequent passages of the kidney secretions. When I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills I procured a box and the results of their use were highly satisfactory. I know of a number of other people who have taken this remedy and have derived just as much benefit."

CHRISTMAS AT ADA VERY QUIET AFFAIR

Never has Ada witnessed a more tranquil Christmas than this has been. Everything was quiet and the people in a high good humor. The police report only four or five arrests Saturday night, which in itself is strong evidence of the fact that order has come to Ada to stay even during Christmas.

Today the business houses are closed and for once many business men and their clerks are mixing with the crowd on the streets. Many others have gone to the woods for a hunt and will be in good shape for the grind of tomorrow.

UNION CHRISTMAS TREE THIS EVENING

When the News man called at the city hall this afternoon Mesdames Chauncey, Winn and Keen, ably assisted by Jno. Beard were at work fixing the Christmas tree for this evening. Others probably dropped in later and with their help the tree is being made most attractive. Quite a number of contributions have been made for it and it bids fair to be a most gratifying success. It is not too late yet for others to make a donation if they feel disposed to make Christmas merry for the little folks.

Mrs. Fauntleroy Gives Dinner

Yesterday evening at 6:30 a happy company of guests had the pleasure of dining with Mrs. R. B. Fauntleroy at her home. It was in the nature of a family reunion and guests invited. Twenty-two covers were laid and the guests partook of a meal that represented the highest development of the culinary art.

Busy Times at Postoffice.

Although the salespeople of Ada have been kept on the jump for the past ten days, the postoffice boys have been doing the Santa Claus act to their utmost limit. They have simply been buried under an avalanche of mail, both outgoing and incoming, and it has taken some tall scratching to keep out from under.

Stained Glass.

It is to the Chinese that we owe the making of stained glass. It is claimed that the first glass-staining was done by the Celestials about the year 2000 B. C., but other authorities have it that the process was not discovered until after the beginning of our era. At any rate, it seems to be agreed that the art was original with the Chinese.

The Egyptians made sham jewels of glass at least 5,000 or 6,000 years before Christ. In some of the ancient tombs scarabs of glass have been found in imitation of rubies, emeralds, sapphires and other precious stones, and the glass beads found in various parts of the Old World were quite possibly distributed by Phoenician traders to confiding barbarians as jewels of great price.

Very little mention is made in ancient records of the use of glass in windows. The climate of Greece and Egypt and the manner of life in those countries gave little occasion for it. But at Pompeii and Herculaneum there have been found fair sized slabs of window glass not of very perfect manufacture and probably at no time translucent.

Remains of what was presumably window glass have also been found among the ruins of Roman villas in England. In the basilicas of Christian Rome the arched window openings were sometimes filled with slabs of marble in which were apertures to receive glass which may or may not have been colored, foreshadowing the plate tracery of early Gothic windows.

Stained and painted glass, existing as we find in mediaeval windows, probably dates back to Charlemagne.

At the time of the Norman conquest stained glass windows can no longer have been uncommon, but archaeologists appear to be agreed that no complete window of the ninth or the tenth century has been preserved, and that even of the eleventh century there is nothing that can be identified quite certainly.

The great mass of early Gothic glass belongs to the thirteenth century, and when early glass is spoken of the expert generally has reference to the thirteenth century product.

HER FIRST PATIENT A DOG

Florence Nightingale Began Her Work Among the Sick by Caring for Injured Pet Animal.

A name that has been long known and loved throughout the world is that of Florence Nightingale. There is indeed something almost angelic in the sound of the name. "Angel of Mercy" was the title which she bore in life and by which she will be remembered in death. The heroic service of this noble woman in soldiers' camps and upon battlefields is one of the greatest examples of kindness and self-sacrifice in the annals of human kind. So beloved was this gentle woman, it is said, that the sick and dying used to kiss her shadow as she passed their cots. The elements which made this life of such beauty and determined so useful a career for Florence Nightingale may be best understood from the following story:

"Her first experiences as a nurse were with her dolls, whose broken limbs and bruised heads she bandaged and cared for with all the tenderness and gentleness of her nature.

"As she grew older she became interested in caring for wounded or sick pets and other animals. Her first patient was a dog named Cap. The dog belonged to one of her father's shepherds, and one day she learned that Cap had been injured by some boys and that the shepherd was preparing to kill his beloved dog in order to save him from the suffering. In spite of the fact that she was still a little girl and very timid, she at once drove to the shepherd's home, and, with the aid of the clergyman of the parish, she nursed the wounds of the injured animal, and soon he was well again.

"Her love for pets and her skill in curing them soon became well known, and in a short time she had become the nurse of all the wounded animals of the neighborhood."—Our Dumb Animals.

"Bonnyclabber."

The popularity of barley water in West end clubs was mentioned in the course of evidence collected by the royal commission on the licensing laws nearly 20 years ago, says the London Chronicle. The Inner Temple, too, is very proud of its particular decoction of barley water, which is served at both lunch and dinner in Hall. And though the Inner Temple also brews its own ale, it is the barley water which, particularly during recent years, has been in the greater demand.

New drinks have sometimes a glorious and brief popularity. Lord Stratford, writing to Lord Cottingham in 1635, extols "Bonnyclabber," which he says "is the bravest, freshest drink you ever tasted. Your Spanish don would, on the heats of Madrid, hang his nose and shake his beard an hour over every sop he took of it, and take it to be the drink of the gods all the while." No one, however, seems to know the exact composition of the seductive "bonnyclabber," although from an allusion to it by Ben Jonson in "The New Inn," it would seem to have been a mixture of beer and buttermilk.

Oiling the Atlantic.

Pouring oil on the troubled waters will be much more than a metaphor if a plan offered by the United States Hydrographic Office is carried out. Its serious proposal is to keep the path between New York and the Northern European ports well oiled, so that the waves may be kept down and passengers may cross in perfect comfort. The hydrographic office knows a lot about waves, and claims that nothing is so bad for them as oil. Moreover, oil spreads quickly and thinly over the water, and hence the calming can be done at small expense. A quart of cheap petroleum an hour for each ship would, they say, do the work in decent weather, and $25 per trip ought to cover it easily. With the big liners constantly passing, the part carried away by the ocean currents would be restored without delay.—Wide World Magazine.

The Evening Fire.

The bright, sweet days of porch life are fast going. It has come time again when the evening gathers to start up the furnace or the grate. The change is not what the heart longs for, and yet there is a joy in watching the dancing flame drive the coolness out of the air that covers the walls of the room with a soft, gray tint. And then, when the lamp is lit and one takes up a favorite book, and reads and reads, while he stretches out his legs toward the cheery flame, he quite forgets the dear old porch as he mingles with another set of angels quite as bright and fair. It is one of the happy experiences of life, when the first cool evening comes, and you pull down your curtains, light the fire, and rollick at will among your best and sweetest thoughts. It is a great contrast with a day's "rattle" out in the cold world.

Different Views.

He (shaking his head)—The outlook for us all is dark these days. She (mournfully)—Yes, it is about time to think of getting in the winter coal.

An Enjoyable Occasion.

"Was your chafing dish party a success?" "Great. We spoiled all the food early in the evening, and then went to a regular restaurant."

Court of Appeals Hit Bootleggers.

Guthrie, Okla., Dec. 22.—Justice D. A. Richardson of the criminal court of appeals handed down an important decision Thursday in a liquor case which was appealed from Caddo county. Judge Richardson's decision is to the effect that the presence of a man's name on the records of the office of the internal revenue collector, showing possession of an internal revenue license to "R. L. D." together with proof that shipments of liquor have been made to the man, is prima facie evidence of the man's guilt as a bootlegger.

This decision was made in the case of Logan Billingsly of Caddo county and the man's sentence was affirmed.

This decision gives State enforcement Attorney Fred S. Caldwell a strong foothold, and open up for him an easy way to the practical suppression of bootlegging in the state, as President Taft in answer to an appeal from Governor Haskell, has suggested the internal revenue records as an aid to enforcement, and the records are open to state officers at any time.

Justice Richardson says in his decision: "The courts of this state will take judicial notice that the abbreviation, 'R. L. D.' as used in the records of the internal revenue office, means 'retail liquor dealer,' and that the possession of such a license, with proof of the possession of liquor, is prima facie evidence."

I. J. Carter went to Lehigh this morning to return with his little daughter, who is coming home this afternoon.
